BURLINGTON BANK TO PAY 35 PERCENT SOON

Predict Payments Will Be Made in About 30
Days

IS ANXIOUSLY AWAITED

BURLINGTON, N. J., Aug. 13.—Payment of a 35% dividend to depositors in the closed Burlington City Loan and Trust Company is predicted within 30 days. Scores of school children are included among the 6,000 who will share. The bank has been closed since last December.

At the same time, it was learned that the local Chamber of Commerce is being urged by a committee to protest against large fees being paid to attorneys handling litigation arising out of the closing of several banks in this State.

MAY MODIFY AMENDMENT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 13.—A proposal to modify the 18th Amendment today seemed likely of adoption at the December session of Congress as both Republican and Democratic leaders declared President Hoover had approved their specific modification plan in his acceptance speech.

Representative James M. Beck, Republican leader of the Senate, endorsed President Hoover's modification views declaring they differed only in detail from the famous Beck-Linthicum resolution which the House almost adopted this summer.

There was general sentiment on Capitol Hill that the President's proposal for prohibition reform would lead to submission of a new amendment next fall.

WALKER SEES SUCCESS

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Mayor James J. Walker's battle to prevent his removal as chief magistrate of New York City seemed decidedly nearer success today than when the public hearing began last Thursday before Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The prospect of Governor Roosevelt's acting quickly on the removal charges is now remote as a result of a Court order issued by Supreme Court Justice H. J. Hinman yesterday which blocks a decision until August 19th, when Governor Roosevelt's authority to remove the Mayor will be argued in Court.

FACE REDUCED APPROPRIATIONS

Harrisburg, Aug. 13.—State-aided hospitals, homes and schools and Mothers' assistance funds face reduced appropriations unless the Steedle bill is passed by the Legislature, Governor Gifford Pinchot warned Representative James F. Steedle, Allegheny, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

Youth, 9, Near Death; Hit By Stray Shot

SALEM, N. J., Aug. 13.—(INS)— James Shelley, 9, of Philadelphia, is near death in the Memorial Hospital here today as a result of a shot fired by a companion while hunting birds at Oakwood Beach.

He was shot through the abdomen by a shot fired by Frederick Burkhardt, 14, of this city. The boys were playing on the beach when a 22 calibre rifle with which they were shooting at birds was discharged accidentally the bullet striking Shelley.

Sheriff George P. Dixon said he was convinced the shooting was accidental and released Burkhardt in the custody of his parents.

FIRE STARTS AS ILL FARMER DROPS LANTERN

Evan Bean, Ferndale, Loses Barn, Crops and Machinery

WAS PARTLY INSURED

FERNDALE, Aug. 13.—A lighted lantern, falling from the hands of a farmer who was stricken ill, here, ignited the barn, destroying the structure with its contents of machinery and crops.

The farmer, who suffered an attack of vertigo, is Evan Bean, the owner.
His farm is located midway between Kintnersville and Ferndale. Nine years ago the Bean barn was burned down after it had been struck by lightning.

Between 3 and 4 o'clock yesterday morning, Bean, who did not feel well the previous night, arose and walked out to his barn. There he became quite ill and toppled over with the lighted lantern in his hand. His only daughter, Miss Edith Bean, had heard her father arise unusually early and when she looked out a house window, she noticed the barn in flames.

Rushing to the burning structure she found her father in a dazed condition, but revived sufficiently to save himself from the flames that were fast approaching the spot where he had fallen. Screams of the daughter attracted neighbors who rushed to the scene and assisted in rescuing two horses and some other stock that was in the barn. The barn is partly covered by insurance.

Daniels.

SUPPER SUCCESS

TULLYTOWN, Aug. 13.—About 250 persons enjoyed the harvest home chicken supper on the lawn of Tully-town M. E. Church Wednesday evening. An exceptionally fine menu was served.

"Princess Alice" at Hoover Tea

Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth (left), widow of the late speaker, is shown with Miss H. Edger as they strolled on the White House lawn at a tea given by Mrs. Hoover to members of the notification committee and G. O. P. notables. Mrs. Longworth is one of the "right wing" of the Roosevelt family working for the re-election of President Hoover.

DAIRYMEN WILL TOUR FARMS IN THE COUNTY

Trip Outlined for August 16th
Includes About 40-Mile
Jaunt

RED MEN'S PICNIC

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 13.—Approximately 40 miles will be covered in a tour of dairy farms in Bucks County when Bucks County dairymen meet next Tuesday. The trip, outlined by county agent, William F. Greenawald, will be participated in by over 100 people it is expected.

The party will meet at the court house in Doylestown at 10 a. m., d. s. t.
Mr. Greenawald has announced that the upper end dairymen do not have to come to Doylestown, but they may join the other tourists at the Ernest Foellner farm, near Ottsville, where the first stop will be made at about 10.45. Mr. Foellner has a herd of 65 Holsteins.

The second stop in the morning will take place on the farm of Mary Fry, at Ottsville, where a herd of 35 Jersey cattle will be seen.

Members of the party will be served basket lunch at Trauger's Dam, near Pipersville. Immediately after the lunch hour the party will proceed to the farm of William F. Fretz, Pipers-ville, where the members will see a herd of 65 Guernseys. From Pipers-ville the members will proceed to Plumsteadville, where they will visit the farm of Willis M. Hunsberger, the owner of 40 head of Holsteins.

The last stop of the day will be made in the village of Plumsteadville, where they will visit the Guernsey herd of Claude Myers, the owner of 40 head of Guernseys.

During this afternoon and evening
Bucks County Red Men's Association will conduct its annual picnic at the K. G. E. park, Kellers Church.

Races, games and contests of all kinds are arranged for amusement of the children and older folks. Prizes are in readiness for the winners.

Included in the program are drills, dancing and music. Members of the Degree of Pocahontas have been invited to participate also.

Obtain Permit to Operate Bathing Pool in County

A permit was issued today, by Dr.
Theodore B. Appel, Secretary of Health at Harrisburg, to Mr. Robert M. Platt, Bustleton avenue and City Line, Somerton, Philadelphia, approving the operation of an existing outdoor swimming pool at the Fun Fun Recreation Center located in Southampton Township, Bucks County.

Bathing place permits officially issued now number 265, representing about one-fifth of the estimated number of bathing places in the commonwealth. The applications on file, however, number over 800.

Lingering Illness Is Fatal to Emil Falton

EDDINGTON, Aug. 13.—Emil Falton, husband of Helen Falton, died at his home here yesterday at the age of 65 years, following a lingering illness. He had made his home in this section for about five years.

In addition to his wife Mr. Falton is survived by three daughters and three sons.

Rev. Paul R. Ronge, pastor of Zion Lutheran Church, will conduct the funeral service at the Falton home, Park avenue, Monday at two p. m.

TRENTON CHAMPION IS BRISTOL BOYS' NEMESIS

Local Net Men, However,

TO ENTER THE DOUBLES

Fred Kuser, seven times title holder of the annual tennis tournament, held at Trenton, N. J., proved a Nemesis to both Bristol boys, Herbert Lawrence and Nelson Green, who have been featuring in this year's tournament, this past week.

Lawrence and Green, who were among the 160 entrants in the tournament, worked their way upward night after night, until the former reached the semi-finals and the latter the quarter finals. Thursday evening, Green met Kuser who defeated him by the scores 6-1, 6-8, 6-0. The second set was hotly contested. Kuser led at first but Green quenced the games, and it required fourteen games to decide the set. Green finally winning by the score 8-6. Green was the only contestant who extended the former champion to three sets.

Lawrence met Kuser in the semifinals last evening. Great interest centered in the match, as the winner would enter the finals this afternoon.
Lawrence had been showing up well with his cannon-ball service, and it was thought he had a chance of winning. As a result a large crowd was present, among whom were a number of Bristol people.

Lawrence took the offensive from the start, and sent over some hard drives which looked like aces, but Kuser in some uncanny manner managed to return them. Following up his drives, Lawrence came to the net and played in his usual superb form, but Kuser, finding it impossible to penetrate his defense, lobbed the ball over his head to the back court, and in this way weakened his game. The former depended altogether upon speed which unfortunately resulted many times in

Nothin' But The Truth

August 9, 1932.
Bristol, Pa.,

Dear Stroller:

Just got in from a trip up the Delaware and brought back a fine specimen of the famous cellophane snake. As its name implies, it is quite transparent, besides being a highly developed, intelligent reptile.

As a new experiment in the realm of science, we fed it a traffic fish. If you have never seen one of these beautiful deep sea specimens it seems to be all head. One eye is green and the other red, and it has an amber tongue. They are used exclusively in all large city aquariums to keep the other poor unemployed fish away from the inquisitive crowds. Hence their name—traffic fish!

Well, after feeding the snake we waited for an intelligence test. Did we get it? Say, listen!
In exactly three minutes this snake had climbed and settled on the pole near the Grand Theatre, the busiest corner in this town. Now as this snake by nature only takes a long breath every three minutes you can see the effect this had on all traffic.
After swallowing the traffic fish the snake had all the traffic under control. Cars stopped when the drivers looked at the red eye in the snake's stomach; whilst others went forward on the green.

Policemen lost their jobs.
There was nothing for them to do. Their whistle factories closed down. All clocks were set, and eggs were boiled on this new three-minute schedule.

How long will this condition last? Well, just as long as we are able to feed this cellophane snake freshly-caught traffic fish.

A. FISHERMAN.

PAIR ADMITS "GAS" THEFTS IN BENSEALEM

Two Eddington Youths Held in $500 Bail for Court

EACH SIGNS CONFESSION

Automobile owners in Bensalem Township who have been having their tanks drained of gasoline may now rest in peace as the guilty ones have been caught and are being held under $500 bail each for the September term of court.

Two youths were arrested early yesterday morning after County Detective Russo had been summoned to Bridgewater, where one of the prisoners was caught red-handed with a five gallon can and a hose wrapped around his waist. Both youths, claiming to be orphans, signed confessions in the office of Russo and last night at a hearing before Justice of Peace, James Guy, pleaded guilty to the charge.

The youths, Thomas Burke, 29, and John Zuwila, 21, both claim Eddington as their place of residence, telling the police that they made their homes in a shack in the old Eddington lumber yard.

Motorists of the Bensalem section have for a long time been missing gasoline. Their auto tanks have been drained while their machines stood outside of either their places of business or residences and then others have had their fuel stolen while their cars were in the garage.
Yesterday morning at about 2.30 William F. Able, Bridgewater, heard a car stop and he jumped out of bed and went outside. He waited awhile and then one of the pair came around the corner. He was halted by Able who found Zuwila carrying a five gallon can and with a piece of garden hose around his waist.

Russo was summoned and then the second arrest was made when Burke was caught. Burke's car was found nearby and the pair admitted they had taken four gallons of gasoline from car of Engelbert Smith, which was parked in his driveway adjoining the property of Mr. Able.

HEADLEY MANOR MAN BUILDS SUNKEN GARDEN

Will Pipe Water From Surface
Pond Over Water Wheel
To Sunken Pool

TWO FINE GARDENS

EDGELEY, Aug. 13.—A flare for something different, a love of gardens, and an abundance of ability and initiative on the part of Evald Caulwine, Headley Manor, have resulted in the creation of a lawn of unusual beauty.
This bit of landscape, brilliant with flowers of every hue, and with excellent shade, boasts of a sunken pool with rock garden on the ground sloping to the water; a large pool in which water plants abound; and a fountain on another section of the green.

The sunken garden and large pool are the result of much labor, and in fact the sunken garden is not yet complete. Mr. Caulwine plans to install a pipe which will carry water from the lily pool underground to a point half-way down the slope of the sunken garden. There it will run out over stones and down upon a small water-wheel which the owner has already placed in position. Directly beneath the water-wheel is to be a small concrete pool. The builder then plans to install an electric pump which will pump the water from the lower garden pool back to the lily pool on the ground surface, thus making a continuous circuit.

Down the slopes leading to the water-wheel are huge rocks, with gay plants and flowers intermingled, with coleas and poppies exceptionally large. Near the top of the slope is a bird bath.

Early this past spring Mrs. Caul-wine purchased one small water hyacinth. "It grew and grew, in fact after smaller plants were broken off from it, some sent out as many as three shoots in a day." Today the Caulwine's have over 100 water hyacinth plants, all from the original one.

An oddity at the fountain at the front of the property is the manner in which stalactites are being formed from some limestone which has been built into the fountain. The fountain was erected in 1923, and in the nine years a few stalactites have grown to a length of two or three inches.

The flower garden at the property of Mrs. J. W. Hilgendorf, also in Headley Manor, is also a place of beauty just now, with yellows and blues predominating. The lawn is bright with the colors of poppies, golden glow, gallardia, gladioli, coxcomb, flocks,

Lad Who Died of Auto Injuries Buried Here

Donato Sclarro, the 17-year-old lad who died as the result of injuries when struck by an automobile while riding his bicycle, was buried in St.
Mark's Cemetery, here, this morning.
Rev. Father T. Rocco, of St. Ann's parish, conducting high mass at St.
Ann's Church at 10 o'clock.

There were in attendance at the service many relatives and friends of the young man, including members of the Fathers' Association orchestra, of which organization the deceased was a member.

The pall-bearers were: Nicholas Ra-go, Silvio DiSabato, Joseph DiMido, Angelo Lapergola, Nicholas Centofanti, Ardo Straffe, Frank Rago, Nicholas DiLissio, Frank Carnosini, Natale Ne-po, and John Zeffri.

Flowers sent in honor and memory of the young man were in profusion, and many people called at the Sclarro home last evening to pay their respects.

HE INVESTED WISELY

There is a lesson in investments for every present and future investor in the inventory of the $38,000,000 estate of Alexander Smith Cochran, New York manufacturer, philanthropist and art connoisseur, who died just prior to the 1929 security market collapse.

Everybody knows what happened in Black October and thereafter to thousands who invested heavily, according to their means, but not wisely. The securities list of the Cochran estate is an interesting example of what happened to the prudent, the knowing and the foresighted.

Diversification of investments and the avoidance of inflated markets saved this vast estate all but paper losses. Of $38,000,000 invested in securities, four-sevenths was in bonds and the remainder in high-grade stocks. Four-fifths of the bond holdings were government issues, Federal, state and municipal; the remainder almost evenly divided between rails and utilities. Of approximately $16,500,000 invested in stocks he had put $2,500,000 in rails, more than a million in utilities, $6,000,000 in banks and miscellaneous and $6,500,000 in industrials.

Bonds held by the estate are worth today only $279,000 less than their total market value of $21,438,000 in June of 1929, although the bond market has undergone three years of terrific bombardment. And so astutely did he buy stocks that his paper losses from the peak prices of the inflation have been only 50 per cent, which seems next to impossible to all but a few investors in stocks.

This is an exceptional case even among the heaviest investors. Many of the country's richest men and women saw their wealth drop almost to the vanishing point and some were wiped out. Wisdom does not always come with great riches.

RISE IN PRICES

The upward trend of prices for farm products, which gained 10 per cent in the month ended July 15, according to the Department of Commerce at Washington, continues. And price trends of other commodities are in the same direction.

Reports persist that Governor Meyer of the Federal Reserve Board has a plan for the general stabilization of commodity prices on a broad scale. Coincidentally there are unfounded rumors of a pending syndicate to take over the Farm Board's remaining stocks of wheat and cotton.

Rising commodity prices are a more substantial barometer of better times than rising stock prices. When products of the field and factory sell at prices that obviously will not provide employment at fair wages for any class of workers, business is in a bad way.

And if a man makes a better mouse-trap, he promptly subscribes to a press clipping bureau.

Cultured people are those who know how to discuss the furniture made by uncultured people.

War is a madness that butchers thousands who might have been killed by fool drivers in time of peace.

'MURDER of NIGHT CLUB LADY'

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY
BY ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY COWLEY-FRIEDLE INC., DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Lola Carewe, "The Night Club Lady", is mysteriously murdered in her penthouse apartment at three o'clock New Year's morning. An hour later, the body of Lola's guest, Christine Quires, is found in Lola's room. Christine had been killed first and her body hidden. Dr. Hugh Baldwin attributes both deaths to heart failure. Guy Everett, Christine's New Year's Eve escort, claims he brought her home at 12:15 and then went riding, alone, on the Motor Parkway. Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother, denies seeing Christine return. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt discounts District Attorney Dougherty's theory that Lola was killed by a jewel thief ring she headed and that Christine met the same fate for knowing too much. Vincent Rowland, Lola's lawyer, discloses that Everett loved Lola and was jealous of Dr. Baldwin. The police are on the trail of Christine's brother, Edgar, who left his Rochester home for New York after receiving a telegram New Year's Eve. Christine was to have inherited wealth shortly. Dr. Multooler, the medical examiner, contradicts Dr. Baldwin's statement that heart failure caused the deaths. A strap picked up in Lola's room presents mute evidence of having caused the bruise on Christine's neck—after death. Everett confesses he lied about riding on the Motor Parkway. He states Christine told him she had discovered a plot to murder Lola and feared for her own life because of her knowledge, adding that Dr. Baldwin was involved. The picture of the young man found in Lola's room is identified by the Paris Prefect of Police as that of Basil Boucher, a young bank clerk, who met a dancer named Lola in Paris, robbed a bank to buy her a ruby, and then disappeared. Basil's parents sold medical laboratory specimens. The scientist employed by Colt to analyze the dust garnered from Lola's room telephones that he knows what killed Lola and Christine.

"Please show us what you have found, professor," pleaded Colt, in his tone a rising note of eagerness. Without replying, Professor Luckner picked up a pair of dainty tweezers. Reaching into a wooden box, which he produced from the pocket of his white linen robe, he nipped something between the steel fingers of his gleaming little instrument. With the air of a conjurer performing a trick he held up the tweezers exposing his treasure.

"I found this in the dust," he proclaimed with an air of pride.

We drew nearer and peered at the two fuzzy, microscopic pieces held in the nippers. What could they be? Professor Luckner deposited his precious findings on a clear piece of the cardboard, and placed over it a magnifying glass.

"See for yourself!" he invited.

Quickly the Commissioner bent over, turned the screw of the glass, and squinted. With intense interest he studied the almost invisible treasure which the scientist had rescued from a sea of dusty sweepings.

"They look like the thin attenuated bristles of some insect!" declared Thatcher Colt finally.

The professor gave a mighty sigh.

"Exactly, Herr Commissioner!" he boomed. "You should have been a scientist yourself!"

"But bristles of what insect?" urged Colt.

Again without replying, Professor Luckner opened a drawer in the kitchen table upon which he had performed his mysterious labors. From the drawer, he drew out a long tube which physicians call a specimen jar. It is the kind of glass house in which an appendix often finds a permanent home. This jar was nearly filled with yellow alcohol. It was labeled, and as Colt received the bottle from the professor's long, pale hand, he pronounced the legend of the label as if it were an incantation:

"Cebtrurus Exilicanda!"

With a startled air, Colt glanced from the embalmed thing in the specimen jar to the flushed and proud face of Professor Luckner.

"What is this?" asked the Commissioner.

"A scorpion!"

"A scorpion!" repeated Colt in astonishment. "A scorpion, did you say?"

"The most deadly known to man!"

"Lola Carewe and Christine Quires died from the bites of a scorpion?"

"There is no doubt of it! I have already talked on the telephone with your Doctor Multooler."

My ears were ringing with astonishment. How could such a thing have been done? I remembered the box, stuffed with cotton, found in the snow. But who could plot and manage such an unthinkable method of murder? It seemed mad—preposterous—and madder still when I remembered that once Lola Carewe had danced a waltz of her own invention that was called "The Scorpion!"

"Tell me about this," urged Thatcher Colt. "I had never understood that the bite of a scorpion was necessarily fatal."

The old scientist wagged his head to one side and his eyes gleamed with the pride of superior knowledge.

"But this is not the ordinary insect," he explained with a bland air. "It caused me a great deal of trouble before I could identify it. Seven Columbia professors have been here this morning to help me out. Fortunately one of them had this perfect specimen—and then I knew I was right!"

Over Colt's shoulder I looked at the dead creature in the bottle. It was light-colored, long-tailed, and was about two inches long, with two enormous feelers at the head, flat at their ends.

"There is an even finer specimen in the Bureau of Entomology, in Washington, so I am informed," continued Professor Luckner. "I have a photograph—"

"But where are these creatures found?" interrupted Colt.

"Particularly in Durango, Mexico," Professor Luckner replied. "They cause about forty deaths a year in that region."

"What are the symptoms when one is bitten, professor?"

"A stinging, burning sensation like a hot needle being plunged into the flesh. It is a peculiar sensation and is always recognized, even by those who did not see the alacran, as the Spaniards call the scorpion. Within a few minutes the bitten place becomes red, followed by a severe pain in the part affected. In a little while—in some cases it is three or four minutes, becomes a second or so—that part becomes numb. The tongue becomes thick and it is impossible to pronounce words clearly."

Colt glanced at me. Our thoughts must have been the same. Again we were living through those moments of agony when he had found Lola Carewe in anguish on the floor.

"Go on," urged Colt in a low voice.

"For quite a while there is a coma. Then spasms or convulsions of the entire body begin. They are more marked in the legs and back. They are accompanied by a straining and grunting sound. There is more or less paralysis of the respiration. Croup-like sounds come from the throat. These convulsions come in waves and increase in severity. There is a livid pallor to the face. Just before death the pulse is very rapid, the eyes bloodshot—and often the patient spits up blood."

Colt's sombre eyes lingered on the specimen of the dead scorpion in the bottle.

"It all tallies," he remarked.

"There is no doubt, as you say, that these two women died from the bite of this insect. But where is the rest of its body? You found only these two legs."

"No more, Herr Commissioner," replied Luckner inconspicuously.

"And why is it that the scorpions, living or dead, were not found?" added Colt, peering under contracted brows at Professor Luckner.

The old savant grinned.

"They die when they bite human beings," he explained.

"Then the murderer must have recovered the dead scorpion—"

Professor Luckner laughed aloud.

"All except those two little legs," he boasted, with undignified glee.

"And where did it bite Lola and Christine—when there were no wounds on the body?"

"It is not for me to answer that—"

"Not for you—but for me," said Colt in solemn accents. "There was no mark on her body, except—"

"I think I could give you a hint!" cried the old scientist surprisingly.

"Look here what I have also done—all for the honor and the glory of your unappreciative police department!"

On another table at the farther end of the room lay the clothes in which Lola Carewe and Christine Quires had been clad when we found them. From out of the bundle one piece lay exposed—the bathrobe about which Thatcher Colt had been so curious. Lola's garment that had been buttoned the wrong way.

"There is what you call a clue, Herr Commissioner," said Professor Luckner. "I cut away the sleeves of all the garments and sheared them open. Here, in this one, just below the elbow, I found something."

LATEST EVENING WRAP IS FORMED ENTIRELY OF OSTRICH FEATHERS

By Alice Langeller

(L. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS.—Something very smart in summer surprises comes by way of the latest evening wrap made entirely of ostrich feathers, curled or uncurled and so much like fur that one is wondering whether women are going to prefer feathers to fur when winter comes.

These little wraps come in all colors of the rainbow and are chosen in contrasting or matching shades to accompany the evening dress.

Another fashion surprise is sky-blue ermine fur which was seen in a collar of the sailor type, worn on a white nautical gaberline ensemble. The narrow waved edgings of white ermine were inserted round the border, and to this was added a tight cuff with the same motif around the forearm.

Pale canary-dyed broadtail makes another summer coat, high-waisted and with large collar of dark Canadian mink.

Flowers—real flowers—are very smart this season. The Hawaiian necklace is now being made in natural blooms. A necklace of sweet peas tightly interlaced was seen on a chic woman at the Ritz recently and another carried a dainty muff of white camellias relieved by a few green leaves.

Posies of small flowers worn in the corsage of rather old-style gowns are replacing the artificial ones of the last collections.

OUR DAILY FOOD

By COLONEL GOODBODY

SAVING MONEY WITH EVAPORATED MILK

ALL of us want to save money and cut the corners these days, and one good way to do it is to use evaporated milk in cooking. In custards, junket, puddings, with cooked vegetables and so on. Dietitians don't say you have to drink your daily pint or quart of milk you know. You can get it in any way so long as the total amount is all right. And the amount of money you can save by using evaporated milk in cooking is an item not to be sneezed at.

Not long ago, I visited an evaporated-milk plant in Wisconsin. I wish every woman who uses evaporated milk could have seen that plant. From top to bottom, it is as clean as a whistle, and from the time the milk is received from the farmer to the time it goes out in the freight train, no human hand has touched it.

Fresh milk goes through two preliminary heatings before the evaporation begins. Then it is pumped into the vacuum pans—really big copper tanks with heating coils in the bottom.

Great pumps that throb and grunt suck the air out of the tanks and create a vacuum. When the milk goes into this vacuum, the water evaporates almost instantaneously. Next the milk goes to the viscolizer, where it's forced, by a pump with tremendous pressure, between metal plates so close together that you wouldn't know there was any space between them at all. What that does is to break up the big fat globules into very minute, tiny fat globules. These stay suspended in the milk and never separate out to come to the top as cream.

After the fat globules are broken up, the milk is immediately cooled, and run into big tanks, from which it is pumped to the canning and sterilizing room. The whole can is closed, you know, except for a tiny hole in the cover, and the evaporated milk is automatically forced in through this little hole, after which the hole is closed by an automatic soldering machine. Then there are two more heatings, and finally the sterilizing.

There is a maze of automatic conveyors all over the huge plant. The cans always seem to be going places—climbing up ladders, rolling down hills, sauntering along on the level—always going somewhere, all by themselves, along narrow little tracks, nobody ever touching them—till they end up in the freight car and call it a day.

Evaporated milk is a fine whole-some product. Medical men and dietitians of high standing have found that as far as healthfulness goes, evaporated milk comes off with flying colors. And as far as safety goes—well, of course, evaporated milk is sterilized. There just can't be any dangerous germs in it.

TWILIGHT BATTLE TO OPEN HERE TOMORROW

(By T. M. Juno)

A large crowd is expected to be on hand on St. Ann's field tomorrow afternoon when the first of a three-game series to determine the champions of the Bristol Twilight League will be played. Edgely A. C., winners of the first half, will meet the winners of the second half, John Field's St. Ann's nine.

The clubs are evenly matched and a good, close game is anticipated. Edgely finished runner-up to the "Saints" in the second half and during the whole season won just as many games as the St. Ann's team.

Incidentally, the Edgely club has not defeated the second half champions in the four times they met during the season, although every game played ended in close scores.

The Edgely team is a slight favorite in battling over St. Ann's nine. The total season average for the first half champs is .257, while the "Saints" season's average is .246.

It is most likely that "Pete" Firce and "Charlie" Whyno will draw the pitching assignments from their managers. Both hurlers are in great shape and these two actually pitched their clubs to the championship. St. Ann's will have Ralph Narcisi waiting in reverse, while Edgely will be resting another ace, "Jake" Tranotti.

The rest of the lineup, with their batting average, will probably be: Edgely—Duxan, .227; F. Dick, .305; Volvin, .152; Manzo, .300; Piazza, .360; Praul, .222; L. Hibbs, .368; F. Hibbs, .23 and Firce, .212.

St. Ann's—DiBlassio, .105; Bornice, .211; Pieo, .250; Fields, .351; Oriola, .325; Juno, .304; Angelo, .250; Quici, .239. Whyno is batting .320.

The fray will begin at 2.30 p. m., sharp.

DOUGHERTY'S HURLING WINS FOR SHAMROCKS

CROYDON, Aug. 13.—The Shamrocks, of Bristol, had little trouble in downing the home club here last night to the tune of 6-3 as "Franc" Dougherty was in fine form and allowed the home club but two bingles.

"Lefty" DiTanna hurled for the homesters and outside of the second frame pitched good ball. Four runs in the third inning proved his downfall.

"Skeeter" Flynn, "Marty" Fallon, and "Eddie" Dugan led the hitters of the fray with seven of the winners' ten hits.

TULLYTOWN LOSES TO LA FRANCE A. C., 3 TO 2

TULLYTOWN, Aug. 13.—In a closely fought game here last night the LaFrance A. C., of Bristol, nosed out the formidable local nine by the count of 3-2.

The battle was a hurling duel between Murphy and Monti with both pitchers receiving splendid support. It was not until the sixth inning that the game was decided.

In this canto, the Bristol club went to bat trailing, 2-1. Murphy drew a pass and Hutchinson singled. Dodge then went in to pinch hit and delivered a timely single which won the game.

Depression A. C. Wins By One-Sided Score

The Depression A. C. trounced the Jefferson A. C. on Leedom's field, last night, before a large crowd. Score was 13-3.

The "Mules" played their worst game of the season in the field, making eight errors.

Al Romig, the winning hurler, allowed only three hits.

Two Women Drop 200 Feet; One Dies

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 13.—(INS)—Tragedy quelled the laughter of a crowd of amusement seekers here last night and brought cries of alarm from the women spectators when two women aerial performers fell 200 feet, one of them to her death. The other is momentarily expected to die.

The dead woman is Irene Berger, 27-year old acrobat. She died in the Atlantic City hospital shortly after the tragedy. The other victim, Roxie La Rose, 30, who is reported dying, is in the same hospital.

A crowd of 8,000 persons were watching the pair perform on the Steel Pier here when Miss Berger lost her balance while gaining momentum for an aerial somersault and plunged downward striking several wires enroute. Her fall disrupted some of the apparatus causing Miss LaRose who was hanging suspended by her teeth to lose her grip and plunged to the concrete floor below.

calendulas, allsolum, ragged robins, spider plants, cosmos, etc.

The Hilgendorfs are proud of a flowering maple, which has countless brilliant blooms of an orange-red shade.

A small alligator revels in the shade of tropical grass which surrounds his tiny pool-home. This little fellow, far from his native haunt, is fond of Japanese beetles.

The lily and fish pool on the Hilgendorfs lawn is elevated, being built entirely above the ground surface. Sloping up the four sides of the rectangular section of water are rockeries. A bird bath has been improvised in the pool at one side, water in this particular section being shallow enough for the feathered folk to enjoy, and according to accounts it is well patronized.

Water poppies in yellow, and water primroses in orange abound on the surface of the pool. There is a tropical night-blooming red lily, yellow and white hardy lilies, and a pink perfumed specimen. Gold fish, golden carp and frogs sport among the plants, and this year many small fish were hatched in the pool. A flagstone walk leads about the pool and to other parts of this attractive garden.

They Just Keep Goin' Along

By HARDIN BURNLEY

EARLE SANDE

THREE GREAT OLD-TIMERS WHO STAGED FINE COMEBACKS THIS YEAR—AGAIN FOOLING ALL THE PEOPLE WHO SAID THEY WERE "THROUGH!"

"SIR WALTER" HAGEN

Tommy LOUGHRAN

HAGEN, Sande and Loughran are three great veterans in various fields of sport who seem to have the faculty of periodically flashing winning form just when all the wisecracks have them tickled for the ash can. Not so long ago—only a few months ago, in fact—if you mentioned the name of any one of these veterans, the answer of the wise boys would have been something like this:

"He's through, absolutely finished. Yes, he was great once, but that's all over now. Just another has-been!"

What ho, ye wisecracks! What about it now? Are these venerable athletes really through?

Not so you could notice it. Hagen—good old "Sir Walter"—flashed his old-time form last month in winning the Western Open from a high-powered field of club-swingers. This tourney is the second most important professional tourney which the U. S. G. A. sponsors, and the "Old Master's" triumph marked the fifth time in his glorious links career that he had copped the Western crown.

Hagen's supporters, loyal as Al Smith's delegates, are enthusiastic over the return of Walter's putting touch. In the Western he broke Olin Dutra's heart by holing a 25-footer for a birdie 3 on the fifteenth green. If Hagen could have dropped putts in that fashion in the National Open at Fresh Meadow, he would have given even the phenomenal Sarazen a close rub—that's how good the rest of his game is just now! Walter will be a man to watch in the P. G. A. match play in September.

Now, about Tommy Loughran. After the Philadelphia left-Jab artist lost to clumsy "King" Levinsky and was knocked out by the inexperienced Steve Hamas, even his best friends were telling him to hang up the mittens. Thomas had his own ideas about that, however, and, after taking a much-needed rest, he signed to fight Hamas in a return match at Philadelphia; and, much to the surprise of everyone, held Hamas to a very close fight. He then took Steve on again in a Quaker City ring, and this time outscored the terrific punching collegian to take the decision! Yes, sir; whatever you think of Loughran's fist capabilities, you've got to give him credit—he's a remarkable athlete.

And then, Earle Sande. Most famous of all jockeys, Sande had been out of the saddle for some time, and few people expected him to try a comeback.

Well, he did come back, and his riding at Empire City last month was one of the sensations of the meet. Several times after particularly superb work in the saddle, Earle was greeted by thunderous applause when he dismounted. He outrode the sensational "Hank" Mills on one occasion, and experts who have seen him ride for the last ten years said that seldom has he shown to better advantage!

Hagen, Loughran and Sande! Did anyone say that these venerable gentlemen were through?

won the admiration of all who witnessed the game. Lawrence, however, played a great game. His cannon-ball drives and his net game would have puzzled most players, but Kuser's years of experience in former tournaments prepared him to meet and conquer just such attacks. The set ended 6-3 in Kuser's favor.

The two Bristol boys deserve praise for the splendid showing they made in the contest. They have decided to enter the doubles tournament which begins next week, and their friends are hoping they will reach the finals.
